The Cost of Attendance is an estimate of how much it will cost you to attend Dartmouth for enrollment in the current academic year. This includes expenses that you will be billed for such as tuition, fees, housing, and food. Also included are estimated out-of-pocket expenses such as books, miscellaneous and, in some cases, transportation.

Scholarship and Grant awards do not have to be repaid. Dartmouth Scholarship awards are determined by financial need. This award is based on application materials that we have reviewed. If your enrollment plans change or if additional information is still required, the award may change.

The Net Cost is the Cost of Attendance less any Scholarship and Grant awards. Additional resources listed below may be available to help you finance the Net Cost.

The Parent Contribution is calculated using your financial aid application materials. All Dartmouth aid is based on need. Because we must ensure equity in our treatment of students, we use a formula to determine the ability of a family to contribute to the cost of education. Exceptions are made for special circumstances on an individual basis.

To meet the Student Responsibility, students are expected to contribute to educational costs from summer earnings, savings, and work during the academic year. You may use scholarships received from outside agencies or student loans to meet this responsibility. Information about student employment at Dartmouth can be found on the Student Employment website at: www.dartmouth.edu/~seo/.

Student or Parent Educational Loans may be available to help finance your Net Cost. Loans listed here have been offered for that purpose. Recommended amounts shown here will cover your Net Cost after the Parent Contribution and Student Responsibility. You may be eligible for a higher amount. See details about loan eligibility at: dartgo.org/loans.
