

There are NUMEROUS offices at Dartmouth that support global experiences. Below are a few that fall outside of academic departments:

Center for Professional Development

The CPD offers programs and resources to help students reflect on and articulate the value of global experiences in and out of the classroom.

Dartmouth Center for Social Impact

The Dartmouth Center for Service prepares students to be transformative leaders for the common good. Through community-driven experiential learning, our students cultivate their skills, scholarship and passion to develop high-impact approaches to the most pressing societal problems.

Dartmouth College-American University of Kuwait Program

An opportunity for students to intern in administrative offices at the American University of Kuwait (AUK) for either a fall or spring leave term. AUK is a young (it turned ten years old in 2014) institution based on the American liberal arts model of higher education. Classes are taught in English.

Frank J. Guarini Institute for International Education

The Guarini Institute provides leadership and direction for the College's rich portfolio of credit-bearing off-campus programs. We endeavor to prepare students for a lifetime of learning and ethical civic engagement through transformative global academic experiences.

John Sloan Dickey Center for International Understanding

The Dickey Center for International Understanding

The Dickey Center strives to create global citizens at Dartmouth inside the classroom and out. Dickey is home to the International Studies Minor, a range of globally-focused student groups, multiple funded off-campus opportunities, and co-curricular on-campus learning programs.

Nelson A. Rockefeller Center for Public Policy and the Social Sciences

The Rockefeller Center is a catalyst for public policy research, teaching, and deliberation. Rocky fosters a commitment to the ideals of public service and leadership through a variety of curricular and co-curricular programs. These experiences prepare students for lives of leadership and service in a diverse and globally interdependent world.

Office of Pluralism and Leadership

OPAL facilitates the academic, social, cultural, and leadership development of students and communities by serving as a central resource on issues related to gender, race, culture, sexuality, and socio-economic class. OPAL is also home to the International Student & Friendship Family Program.

Rassias Center

Aware of the crucial need for understanding in the world today, this center is committed to the improvement of communication through effective instruction of language and culture.

Undergraduate Advising and Research

This office facilitates opportunities for students to engage in research with a faculty mentor, fostering first-hand experience in an academic field of research and development of skills.
